

Gamping: Camp in European backyards

Do you want to go on an adventure, far from the beaten track, on the old continent? Do you want to discover the Châteaux of the Loire Valley in France or maybe Romania, in Eastern Europe? But then, it's not really a budget issue...

Paris, 3 February, 2015 –After AirBnB or Couchsurfing, here comes Gamping: camping at someone's home! Based on sharing economy, it's a digital platform that connects hosts and campers. Original, practical and cheap. How does it work?

What is Gamping?

It is now possible to camp on private property for a few euros, either in a tent, a motorhome or a caravan. Closer to nature, far from crowded campsites, it's a new, more relaxed, and friendly camping experience. This economical method (€0 to €15 night/person) lets you enjoy roomy and comfortable places (toilet blocks, barbecues, swimming pools, tennis). A true experience closer to civilization.

Zoom: Two Gamping destinations

Saumur, France

Breb, Romania

For €12 a night, enjoy a night in a chateau of the Loire Valley. You just have to pitch your tent in the 9 hectare garden. You could have breakfast in the sunroom of the house...

For only €6 a night, use the garden of this traditional Romanian house. In the heart of the countryside, the first restaurant is found 25km from the village. Breb is out of time...

About Gamping

A concept born in 2013, "Gamping" has already won over several thousand enthusiasts in France and throughout the world. The French start-up referenced more than 800 hosts offering over 2000 pitches for tents, motorhomes, and caravans, now across 28 countries (Europe, but also the United States, Australia, Brazil, Kenya, Costa Rica, etc.).